

Dimitra Moniou studied Classics at the Department of Philology of the University of Athens. She continued with her postgraduate studies on Byzantine literature at the Department of Byzantine Philology of the University of Athens (2003-2005) and at the University of Granada - Spain (2008-2010). Her dissertation (2009) dealt with the life and works of Georgios Moschampan, an important thirteenth-century anti-unionist author. She focuses on Middle and Late Byzantine literature (hymnography, poetry, history, homiletics, antirrhetic philology, hagiography etc).